PURPOSE: Make emergency burners for your 72-hour emergency kits.

SONG: “When We’re Helping,” CS 198

LESSON: Gather together the following supplies:

- Clean tuna fish cans
- Corrugated cardboard, cut into strips slightly smaller than the height of the can
- Paraffin wax
- Old pan to melt paraffin in

Simple burners can be made by coiling strips of cardboard that are cut into widths just a little shorter than the inside of a tuna fish can. Fit the coiled cardboard tightly into the tuna can, then carefully pour melted paraffin wax over the cardboard to fill the can. When the wax is completely cooled and set, store these burners in watertight Ziploc bags.

To use your burner, light the cardboard with a match. The wax will keep the cardboard burning long enough to heat a can of stew or chili. For fun, try using one of your burners to heat dinner some evening.
