

For I Am A Child Of God
by Shel Eldredge

I look outside my window,
And see the fallen snow,
The world is still and silent
With a peaceful, heavenly glow.

And as I stare in wonder,
Upon my window falls,
A single lovely snowflake,
So delicate and small.

I marvel at the pattern
As it slowly melts away
Artwork from the sky above.
I wish that it could stay.

Another lands and then one more,
I study them with care.
Each snowflake is so different,
I cannot help but stare.

I am like those snowflakes
That dance up in the sky.
For I was created, uniquely me,
And sent to earth to fly.

God loves me and He watches,
Just like I watch the snow.
He wants me to be the best I can,
To sparkle and to glow.

I'll try my best to do what's right
To hold to the iron rod.
For I am more precious than falling snow,
For I Am A Child of God.

For I Am A Child Of God
by Shel Eldredge

I look outside my window,
And see the fallen snow,
The world is still and silent
With a peaceful, heavenly glow.

And as I stare in wonder,
Upon my window falls,
A single lovely snowflake,
So delicate and small.

I marvel at the pattern
As it slowly melts away
Artwork from the sky above.
I wish that it could stay.

Another lands and then one more,
I study them with care.
Each snowflake is so different,
I cannot help but stare.

I am like those snowflakes
That dance up in the sky.
For I was created, uniquely me,
And sent to earth to fly.

God loves me and He watches,
Just like I watch the snow.
He wants me to be the best I can,
To sparkle and to glow.

I'll try my best to do what's right
To hold to the iron rod.
For I am more precious than falling snow,
For I Am A Child of God.